THE DIVINE BOOK - THE DIVINE BLOOD

Holy Bible, Book Divine
Precious Treasure, thou art mine.

Dare deny this covenant of love
The Divine Book – The Divine Blood.

He scarlet wool and hyssop took
Moses with blood sprinkled the Book.

God shed His blood – the remission of sin
Precious and pure, for the souls of men.

He breathed upon His hallowed page
Redemption's story for age to age.

That rugged cross, it is mine
Stained with blood, God's precious Divine.

Now earthly trophies I lay down
Then one day, for heaven's crown.

Holy Bible, Book Divine
Precious Treasure, thou are mine.

The Voice in the Wilderness is a nonprofit, independent incorporation, founded by Rev. Dr. J. Royce Thomason D.P.D. Ph.D., evangelist and medical missionary. The organization is dedicated to the spreading of the whole gospel to the world, especially in foreign lands. The program consists of building mission stations, supporting American missionaries and native pastors by partnering with the local church in various areas of ministry and preaching Christ to the lost. We are supported by the gifts of those who care. Contributions to The Voice in the Wilderness for projects or to support the ministry of a missionary will be used as indicated by the donor following approved policies and procedures. Gifts are tax deductible and should be made out to The Voice in the Wilderness.

MY PERSONAL MESSAGE TO YOU

Dear Friends in Christ,

“Are you from the Philippines” I asked the young lady at the Wal-mart check-out? “No, Sir. I am from Indonesia,” she replied with a smile. “Indonesia and the Philippines are very close.”

I handed her a gospel tract and said, “I just returned from the Philippines and thought that was your homeland. How long have you been in the United States?

“Almost one year,” she politely answered.

“Well, a very special welcome to America!” I said.

The mission field is in our own backyard, and churches across America remain in their little box – maybe a small town, country crossroad, or mountain hollow in disobedience to Christ’s command - Countless believers who have never won a single soul to the Saviour. The children sing “Jesus loves the little children, all the children of the world, red and yellow, black and white, they are precious in His sight, Jesus loves the little children of the world.” Yet, the adults listening do not even understand, let alone, practice the message of this little song. Yes, the mission field is in our backyard, and that soul for whom Christ died may be here to strap a bomb on their chest and blow Americans into eternity unless we obey Christ’s command and share the redeeming love of the Gospel. If you remain in your restricted, prejudiced box and call prophecy politics and sound Bible preaching the pastor’s opinion, blood will be on your hands on the day of reckoning. May 2010 find us faithful witnesses for our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ.

Looking back for a moment, 2009 was an amazing year. Through The Voice in the Wilderness publication, web-site, blog, weekly email, APM correspondence, and monthly letter we endeavored to keep you informed. Information technology often puts us in overload. It is my prayer you will be a selective and discerning reader. I also pray The Voice in the Wilderness literature will be profitable to you as a child of God. Through the publishing ministry of The Voice in the Wilderness we desire to honour God's Word that the scripture "may have free course, and be glorified" – 2 Thess. 3:1. The preaching ministry of The Voice in the Wilderness has consistently held forth the inspired scripture of God profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, and for instruction in righteousness. During 2009 we ministered The Word in eight states and three countries seeing many souls saved and His church strengthened. Praise the Lord for these wonderful opportunities.

Despite a 36% drop in support, we spent over 10 weeks in Venezuela, the Philippines, and India preaching and teaching The Word in 2009. Quite frankly, I'm not even sure how it was all possible. Thank you for your prayers and partnership. The Lord has used us together in a mighty way. Praise His Holy name for the great things He hath done!

In this edition of The Voice in the Wilderness please read Dr. Ronald Williams' article on page 8. Parents, this is a wake up call! Then note the Missions report on the Philippine Pastors Conference. There will be additional photos on www.thevoiceinthewilderness.org. At least once per month review the website for articles, reports, photos, prayer requests and various updates. Also if you have not signed The King James Bible Resolution please do at this time. See page 18 in this edition.

"Finally, my brethren, rejoice in the Lord. To write the same things to you, to me indeed is not grievous, but for you it is safe. Beware of dogs, beware of evil workers, beware of the concision" Phil 3: 1&2. These are perilous times, but great opportunity abounds, God help us to have great discernment and boundless devotion. Amen!

Happy Trails!
For Christ and Souls,
Bro. Ronnie
Isa. 40:31

David Livingstone said...

“For my own part, I have never ceased to rejoice that God has appointed me to the missionary office. People talk of the sacrifice I have made in spending so much of my life in Africa.

“Can that be called a sacrifice which is simply paying back a small part, a great debt owing to God, which we can never repay?

“Away with such a word, with such a view, and with such a thought! It is emphatically no sacrifice. Say, rather, it is a privilege.

“Anxiety, sickness, suffering, or danger now and then, may make us pause and cause the spirit to waver and sink. But let this be only for a moment.

“All of these are nothing when compared with the glory which will hereafter be revealed in and for us.”

You Can Quote Me...

There is a lot simply done in the flesh we mortals go around praising God for, when one day soon, before His throne, GOD will say, "I had nothing to do with that."

There is a God denying, liberal elitism determined to subjugate, suppress, and snuff out Godly, Bible-believing, Jesus Christ loving Americans to clear the way for their disastrous agenda.

From parental absenteeism, pulpit dereliction to God denying public government-run education, liberal intellectual elitism has demonstrated its venomous hatred for Biblical Values and the American Heritage sacrificially established by The Founders and Constitution.

Please tell me how Christian parents can support and send their children to a system that denies God, the Bible, and prayer and do so with absolute intolerance of their brothers and sisters who choose home schooling and Christian education? The attitude of ridicule and disdain toward parents' sacrificing for Christian education certainly is not that of a sweet, sweet, spirit.

Do local church leaders have the mind of Christ if their thinking is saturated with worldly education? Listen to the scripture: "In whom [Christ] are hid the treasures of wisdom and knowledge." Obviously the treasures of wisdom and knowledge are "in Christ" not in a secular, godless education system.

Pastor, Jesus said here recorded in the King James Bible, "...That man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word of God." Jesus was quoting to the devil from Deut. 8:3. Contrast Luke 4:4 in the KJB, NAS, and NIV. Why did the NAS and NIV take away, "but by every word of God"? Remember the judgment pronounced in Rev. 22:19. By the way, that judgment is even recorded in the NAS and NIV. Duh!

With a child's belief system set for life between the ages of four and sixteen years, how can any Biblically thinking parent place their precious child in 12 to 14 plus years of worldly indoctrination by government-run schools? God help us – no wonder church folk think the way they do.

O' dear parent and pastor – I can easily calculate for a public school child during 12 years of education spending as much as 43,000 hours in school, before computer-type technology and watching TV. What kind of thinking, character, behavior and attitude does that produce? On the flip side, how much Bible reading and church time has that same public school child, from a Christian family, engaged in?

The King James Bible Declaration

WHEREAS 2011 marks the 400th Anniversary of the 1611 King James Bible,

AND WHEREAS the King James Bible is based on the Masoretic Old Testament (compiled from the ancient Old Testament manuscripts, guarded and handed down, by the Masorete Hebrew Scholars) and the Received Text (known as the Textus Receptus, Majority text or Byzantine Greek text) preserved by God through Godly men (Ps. 119:89),

AND WHEREAS over 47 spiritually qualified scholars academically superior in Biblical languages and related areas in which no group of translators has before or since been endowed by God to undertake this divinely inspired work (II Tim. 2:21),

AND WHEREAS modern Bible versions have been heavily influenced by corrupted text discarded and rescued from obscurity being revised, updated, altered by men that denied inspiration and inerrancy, men who were evolutionists, rationalists, and theological liberals (I Tim. 6:20&21; II Cor. 2:17; II Tim. 3:8; I Thess. 4:7; [I Thess. 4:1-8]),

AND WHEREAS the Biblical English of the King James Bible is faithful to the original Hebrew and Greek text proven for 400 years in spiritual power, clarity, readability, poetic majesty, reliability yet with a surprisingly small vocabulary simplicity yet soaring to lofty heights (Matt. 5:18; Ps. 119:9-11, 89, 103, 105, 152, 160; II Tim. 3:16),

AND WHEREAS God is not the author of confusion so obvious among users of modern versions when congregations watch projections on big screens of multiple Bible versions and cannot even turn together as believers in the same Bible to read, recite, or study the scriptures together (I Cor. 14:33),

AND WHEREAS King James Bible users hold dear the privilege to take their Bibles to church with the ability to read in unison, search the scriptures together, memorize and quote the Bible together plus follow the pastor as he reads and preaches from the King James Bible (Amos 3:3; Acts 17:11),

AND WHEREAS the modern Bible proponents continue to produce version after version seemingly unable to settle on the best version but ever switching, changing and publishing more versions (Matt. 21:12; Mark 11:15-17; Luke 19:45-48; James 1:8),

AND WHEREAS the source and text of the King James Bible is the standard for the inspired and divinely preserved Word of God, and without doubt English speaking people throughout the earth will continue to see God use His Book, the King James Bible in the preaching, teaching, soul winning, church planting, and missionary endeavors until all shall be fulfilled (Luke 11:35; Rev. 22:18-19),

BE IT RESOLVED the English speaking Christian needs to keep reading, studying, memorizing, teaching, preaching, and holding forth the Word of Life - the old King James Bible. Amen. (Ps. 119:9, 11, 38, 89; John 1:1-5; Eph. 4:14; Eph. 5:6; Phil. 2:16; I Peter 3:15; II Peter 1:19-21; Rev. 22:18-19)

The Voice in the Wilderness would like to request your participation in the above resolution supporting the King James Bible. Please enlist as many signatures of family and friends that would stand with us in celebration of the 400th anniversary of God's preserved Word for English speaking people around the world. Secular/Sacred

Money Connection

World Magazine reported the numbers a decade ago. “Christian publishers” have their share of the big money market. With the Prayer of Jabez, The Left Behind books, Rick Warren, plus a flood of topics from a variety of genres, “Bible Publishers” now print an assortment of big money makers. Do we detect the biblical root of all evil here? Obviously money connects some dots.

“Such numbers have caught the attention of even secular publishers and booksellers. Evangelical publishers have managed to turn out a steady stream of blockbusters in recent years, observes Business Week, making religion the hottest category in books.

“No longer are Christian bookstores the sole outlet for evangelical books. Now evangelical titles—from inspirational meditations to Christian fiction—can be found at Barnes & Nobles, airport bookstands, grocery stores, and Wal-Marts.”

[The money-driven/what sells secular publishing industry is very interested in the big-bucks market of religious books and particularly evangelical books. Must there not be an end-time blurring of the lines for the One-World Union to occur? Note this statement by World:] “Christian publishers are taking advantage of their newfound respectability in the publishing industry by opening new lines specifically designed to attract readers who are not necessarily Christians.” [Do we not want non-Christians reading Christian books? We note the continuation.]

“And the reverse is also true: Secular publishers are opening new lines specifically designed to cross over into the evangelical market.

“Not too many years ago, Christian titles were excluded from the mainstream publishing world. No matter how many copies a title from a Christian publisher might sell, it would never make the New York Times bestseller list. That influential cultural index only surveyed a carefully selected sampling of mainline bookstores, ever deigning to include Christian bookstores, and the mainline stores seldom deigned to carry books from Christian publishers.

“Now, Christian books enjoy a presence in the marketplace. But are they having an impact in the marketplace of ideas? Or does this commercial success come at the price of theological integrity?” [What about the “price of theological integrity?” Are the lines so blurred that this secular/sacred market has become one and the same?]

“Moody has a division called Northfield Press, which publishes self-help, business, and family-relationship books. NavPress has Piñon Press, which publishes self-help, family and adoption, and even medical books on Attention Deficit Disorder and dealing with stress. While NavPress titles assume that the reader is a believer, explains the website, the goal of Piñon Press is to present a biblical worldview to those outside the kingdom of God.

“Thomas Nelson is experimenting with tying in to another once-neglected but huge field: conservative politics. Nelson president and COO Mike Hyatt had long pushed for more sales in the broader market, a vision that bore fruit in the form of a partnership with WND Books, the book-publishing arm of WorldNetDaily, a conservative online news site. The imprint published edgy, politically conservative books that reflected, or at least didn’t conflict with, a Christian worldview.” [Yes, definitely do not conflict or ruffle any feathers. It must be acceptable, user-friendly, Market Driven. What about this line of thought?]

“Because they often report controversial history and current events, Nelson’s Current books also sometimes include coarse language. Because the books are intended for the mainstream market, we have a little more latitude there, Mr. Miller said. We don’t want the language to become gratuitous, but the story is the story. He added that Nelson currently uses salty or provocative language only when it’s relevant and appropriate to the truth of the subject. It’s not in your face all the time, he said.”

[The sacred takes on the secular and then what?] “Just as Christian publishers are trying to reach the secular audience, secular publishers are trying to reach the Christian audience—sometimes simply by buying a Christian publisher. That is what happened to Zondervan. Acquired by HarperCollins, it became part of the even bigger media empire of the international media tycoon Rupert Murdoch, whose holdings range from Fox News to the Los Angeles Lakers. Secular publishers also form partnerships with Christian publishers, as Penguin/Putnam is doing with Strang Communications.

“And secular presses start religious divisions of their own, as with Time-Warner’s two new divisions. Random House, in another example, started WaterBrook. These ventures were not a case of a big company venturing into a market that it did not understand. Lee Hough, a Christian literary agent, said that these secular publishers brought in editors and staff with experience from Christian publishing companies. But the great financial resources and industry clout from the parent companies give them an advantage.

“Time-Warner in 2001 hired Rolf Zettersten, a senior executive at Thomas Nelson, to start Warner Faith. With his contacts, he signed best-selling Christian author Joyce Meyer, and with the Time-Warner distribution clout doubled her sales to 2 million. This success story attracted other big name authors, including Joel Osteen, whose Lakewood Church in Houston is America’s largest.” [Is there any

Bible that warns about this “yoking up?” But of course there must be a reason “Purpose” in all this. Certainly there is. Listen to this:]

“You want Christian writers to be writing on the level as in the regular market. Mr. Arnold agrees: Most traditional Christian fiction was less focused on the art of story and more focused on an agenda-driven approach, he said. The goal of many authors was to ‘teach’ the reader a doctrine through an often one-dimensional story. Ironically, it often wasn’t a prejudice against Christian content that caused most of these novels to be rejected in the general market—the stories simply did not pass the test of great fiction. [“Teach the reader a doctrine.” Fancy that. Certainly Doctrine must not precede dollars! Listen to the following observation made in the article:]

“I am nowhere near as concerned about the effect of fewer Christian books being sold in Christian bookstores as I am about the poor theology being taught in the bestselling Christian books, said Brett Venable, a Christian bookstore manager. It appears to me that the worst thing to happen is not the closing of Christian stores as a result of unfair business practices by publishers, but rather the propagation of loose theology making Christians more ‘spiritual’ but less godly.

“Indeed, it is hard to accuse secular publishers of watering down Christian theology when Christian publishers have been churning out de-gendered Bible translations, Christless moralism, “have faith in yourself” tracts, and sentimental uplift—oblivious to sin, grace, and salvation—and all presented as Christian inspiration.

“The secular giant Random House is owned by Bertelsmann AG, a German media mega-conglomerate that got its start in 1835 as a publisher of Bibles, hymnbooks, and revival resources. The King James Bible – including the dispensationalist Scofield Reference edition – was published by Oxford University Press. And most of the great Christian authors published their works through secular presses. This was true well into the 1960s, from Catherine Marshall’s A Man Called Peter and Christy (McGraw Hill) to C.S. Lewis’ Mere Christianity and Screwtape Letters (Macmillan).

“Having our novels sell well in the general market is a way for us to salt and light through the power of story.... The great news is we’re succeeding beyond our wildest dreams,” said Mr. Arnold.

[Will the “wildest dreams” become a nightmare and a part of the confusion and blur lead to none other than prophetic fulfillment? Maybe if we stuck with THE BOOK, God’s BOOK instead of the publishing proliferation, the devilish dangers would be obvious.]

(This is a partial reprint from The Voice in the Wilderness article referencing World Magazine, July 2/9/2005, by Gene Edward Veith and Lynn Vincent. Obviously much of the subtle invasion of 2000-2005 is now an acceptable norm in 2010! Church after Church has a “NO PREACH” list for the pulpit. Careful, you have entered the Church of the itching ear!)

RELIGIOUS NEWS AND COMMENTS

...TAKING AWAY... Beware dear church when individuals cry “no politics will be preached in ‘my’ pulpit.” They have just violated Rev. 22:19 by their very utterance. The current politics of this age are the very prophecies given in HIS BOOK. The following is an excerpt from the Prophetic Observer, 12/2009
Bob J. Glaze

“When the United Nations came into being in 1945, its future intent was to regulate all nations and bring them under the umbrella of unified control. They have created and installed many different agencies to bring this to fruition but have never been fully successful because of feelings of mutual mistrust or a cause that created a need for a unifying enemy. To overcome these feelings of mistrust the super elite have adopted the proverb, ‘The enemy of my enemy is my friend.’ This super elite comes in the form of the Club of Rome.

“The ‘Club of Rome’ is a think-tank of international globalists.

It was founded in April 1968 by Aurelio Peccei, an Italian industrialist, and Alexander King, a Scottish humanist. It first met in Rome, Italy, hence its name. It is an ‘independent, not-for-profit organization with an international membership.’ It draws on insights and expertise of its members from all regions of the world, from different cultures and histories, from different fields of science and public policy and from academia, civil society and the corporate sector.” (www.clubofrome.org)

“In 1972, it published Limits of Growth, which sold 30 million copies and was translated into 30 different languages. This attention-grabber proposed that the global economic growth could not continue because of the Earth's available natural resources, including oil. It had a doomsday message, that the common enemy of humanity is man. It stated that 'the world had two choices: to continue pursuing material goals and selfish aim, and thereby cause the slow but sure decline of all world power'; or, 'to unite and work towards building an improved life for future generations.' (www.scribd.com/2297152)

"However, in 1974, after discovering they had forecast their own demise, they reversed their position and published another report, Mankind at the Turning Point, which outlined that the future existence of the planet was within human control and future catastrophes were preventable. It was at this time that the Club of Rome's map of the Earth divided into ten parts got the attention of prophecy buffs worldwide. However, in order to insure the future of the planet, a plan had to be devised to unite the globe into one organism. This plan had to burn the fear of annihilation into the souls of every warm body on the planet to move into action and join the 'force.' Mankind at the Turning Point was accepted as the official second report of the CoR.

"The CoR called upon every global player of like mind to join. One such man was Maurice Strong, one of the most dangerous and influential men on the international scene. At the age of 14, the Canadian-born Strong dropped out of school but moved up the ladder quickly. He once stowed away on an ocean-going ship. At the age of 17 he worked as a UN desk clerk. There he met David Rockefeller. He later received attention from Vladimir Putin while on a Canadian government trip to the Kremlin. His friends have included, but are not limited to, Al Gore, Kofi Annan, Ted Turner, and Mikhail Gorbachev (www.canadafreepress.com) His dealings in oil are legendary among the world's biggest oil producers.

"Yet his most prominent and influential role to date was as secretary-general of the 1992 UN Conference on Environment and Development—the so-called Earth Summit—held in Rio de Janeiro, which gave a significant push to global economic and environment regulation (www.afn.org). The products of the Earth Summit was Agenda 21. (www.un.org/esa/dsd/agenda21/)

"As senior advisor to the UN, Secretary-General Kofi Annan, whom we know to be one of the world's biggest crooks, oversaw the new UN reforms. He has helped guide the United Nation's selections of common threats to mankind in order to bring the world under global rule. Have they been successful?

“The first order of business is pollution. (Keep in mind that in Genesis 2:15 God told Adam to dress and keep the Garden of Eden, not bow down and worship it.) Certainly we all want clean air and clean water, but the UN’s goal has not been to simply clean up the air and water but to use it as a tool to unite under the threat of extinction. In 1987, we were advised that freon and hairspray would eventually destroy the ozone layer and we would be fried. This created a huge black market for freon. By the way, we are still here!

“It was then decided that coal, the cheapest way to heat, became the next item cursed by the United Nations that would destroy us with its black smoke and noxious fumes.

“The next CoR contrived common enemy is global warming. Here the name Maurice Strong again raises its ugly head. Strong became the head of the Canadian International Development Agency in 1966. His international work so impressed then-UN Secretary-General U Thant that he asked Strong to organize the first Earth Summit in 1972. It was here that Strong espoused the idea of global warming, even though there was talk of a coming ice age. He warned the UN members of ‘global warming, the devastation of forests, the loss of biodiversity, polluted oceans, the population time bomb’ (www.afn.org). In 1973, he became head of the UN Environment Program. He also served as a member of the World Commission on Environment and Development, the World Federation of United Nations Associations, the Society for International Development, and advisor to the Rockefeller Foundation, the Wildlife Fund, and the all-important Commission on Global Governance.

“These psuedoscientists are trying to destroy the gas of life, carbon dioxide. It is the most discussed subject on the planet today and every nation has placed it at the head of their agenda. Volumes have been written on the subject including carbon credits and its financing with a global tax. However, we simply need to refer to Dr. Edward Blick’s booklet, Obama’s War on CO2 for a commonsense explanation of what is going on. The carbon credit business, in which Al Gore and Maurice Strong founded the first carbon credit corporation in America, will soon make Al a billionaire. It is the greatest single pyramid scheme ever contrived. In order for any cause to have its potential realized it must be built around some sort of religious ideology.

“At the 1992 Earth Summit, Al Gore as a U.S. senator represented the United States at the Maurice Strong-led Rio Earth Summit. Immediately, they developed a mutual admiration relationship along with Ted Turner. Each embraced the cult of Gaia, '... which hold that natural resources have to be protected for the sake of Gaia, a so-called Earth Spirit.... At the United Nations, the UN Environmental Program, founded by Maurice Strong, promotes the idea of an 'Environmental Sabbath,' a variation of the Gaia concept.... One of Strong's organizations, the Earth Council, has produced an 'Earth Charter' for the world that refers to respect for 'Mother Earth' and animal rights" (www.usasurvival.org).

"The 2005 World Summit at the United Nations headquarters pushed the agenda a step forward. It included a section that promoted population control through planned or forced abortion. Kofi Annan, then-head rat, proposed as part of his 'In Larger Freedom' reform package, that 'the Right to Protect' gives the world community the right to intervene in the case of 'national authorities manifestly failing to protect their populations from genocide, war crimes, ethnic cleansing and crimes against humanity.' He left out the part about him embezzling billions from these same nations. It was also contrary to protecting the life of the unborn, even for a mother who chose not to have an abortion.

"John Bolton, the ambassador under George W. Bush had these words to say about the abortion clause: 'I do wish to make one point clear: the United States understands that reference to the International Conference on Population and Development, the Beijing Declaration and Platform for Action and the use of the phrase 'reproductive health' in paragraphs 57(g) and 58© of the outcome document do not create any rights and cannot be interpreted to constitute support, endorsement promotion of abortion.' He could certainly read between the lines.

"UNESCO has also taken on the task of water management for the world. On March 22, 2009, in Istanbul, Turkey, the movie One Water was shown to the World Water Forum. This movie was not about digging wells for rural areas in Africa. It was about trans-boundary water management. It involves international laws and conventions that can take your water and give it to someone else because it belongs to the global community, not to an individual or state. It works on a global scale like NAFTA works on a regional scale.

"The next important commodity more important than oil is food. The United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization (FAO), on November 5, 2009, released a

"And whatsoever ye do in word or deed, do all in the name of the Lord Jesus, giving thanks to God and the Father by him," (Colossians 3:17)

A grief-stricken and broken-hearted father approached me after a church service in which I had preached. He asked if he could share with me concerning his son, so I could possibly use the story as a warning to other parents and young people.

Like many other parents, he and his wife thought little or nothing of the computer in their son's bedroom, nor of his closed bedroom door, nor of his countless hours online.

It was only when he turned 18 that they discovered he had been heavily involved with occultic website and with personalities on chat rooms and blogs that had won his interest and ultimate allegiance. These distraught parents were helpless to prevent him from leaving their Christian home and consort with his new "friends" he had made on the web.

This young man was a graduate of a Christian school, and a member of a faithful family that was a regular part of a fundamental, independent Baptist church. He is now a part of a "gothic" circle of friends, dressing in black clothes, having disdained his Christian legacy. He has turned a deaf ear to the appeals of his parents to repent and come back to the truths he had been taught during his plastic and formative years.

The Modern Monster

The god of this world has a myriad of seductive and alluring temptations available today, and our young people are especially vulnerable. One of the most prominent and ubiquitous temptations is the internet. Decades ago, young hearts were warned against pool halls, dance halls, motion pictures, card playing, etc. As morally dangerous as these things were, they pale in significance as compared to the insidious dangers a teenager faces via his computer. What was only available in unsavory places before and after WWII, is now available to a twelve-year old in his bedroom by the click of a mouse.

Absent Parents

Modern families are not a cohesive unit as they once were. The stresses and pressures on the modern home are multi-faceted. Mothers have left their homes, husband and children for a career in the work place; what precious time left over in her life is inadequate for her to be a successful wife and mother (Mark 3:25). Fathers are stressed to ng Really Harmless Pastimes?

Social Networking

by Dr. Ronald Williams

the limit in their vocation. To succeed and to maintain their position leaves them stretched to also be a husband and protective father. Much unsupervised free time for dependent children is a dangerous factor, as their lower nature tempts them into relationships, entertainment and activities, deleterious to their character and soul. Cell phones, texting and the internet are a spiritual minefield for naive youngsters.

Peer Dependence

A Christian young person should aspire to stand alone for the Lord like Daniel of old, rather than seeking his affirmation, identity and security from his peers (Psalm 1:1). Social networking is about “self,” whereas ministry is about “others.” Because of its great popularity, networking has become a powerful magnet for young hearts. A youngster not involved would think he is missing out on what seems to him “everyone is doing.”

It's All About Me

Narcissus was a character of Greek mythology renown for his beauty. He disdained others, caring only for himself. He fell in love with his own reflection in a pool, and not being willing to stop gazing at his own beauty, perished there, becoming a narcissus flower. His name has come to be synonymous with self-love and self-admiration. This proclivity with self seems to be a driving force behind the involvement of many youngsters in social networking: “it’s all about me.” By way of contrast, Scripture tells us to deny self, take up our cross and follow Christ (Mark 8:34).

Social syncretism is doing as a group what one would not likely do on his own. Social networking tempts a youngster to gratuitously “pile on” a victim being attacked on a chat room, blog or website. This victim can be a person, group, institution, clique, etc. Young people are notorious for being ruthless with those out of favor with their particular group. In one tragic example, a thirteen-year old girl committed suicide over cruel remarks being made about her on the web. The author of those disparaging comments turned out to be a married woman who had pretended to be a teenager.

Social syncretism may also be called “herd mentality,” a phenomenon in which people abandon reason and even morals to follow the crowd. In a recent experiment at Emory University, one of the professors who authored the study found that brain scans performed as a part of the study showed that disagreeing with a group stimulates pain centers in the brain. These brain scans showed participants did not just whimsically agree to go along with the crowd. Rather, the opinion of the crowd actually changed their perception. In other words, the “herd” alters one’s perception of reality.

Most characterized and responsible parents do not need to see this study to know it is dangerous for their child to be involved with uncharactered, foolish and irresponsible peers. They know that “...evil communications corrupt good manners” (1 Corinthians 15:33). These parents instinctively know unsavory friends will contaminate and corrupt their child. Unfortunately, young people do not see this danger, which is why Paul warned about the sinister and insidious danger of this social phenomenon: “Be not deceived” (because many are deceived about the subtle danger of wrong friends, conversations, activities, etc.). Godly parents know that their child will become what their friends are: “As in water face answereth to face, so the heart of man to man.” (Proverbs 27:19). The Holy Spirit shows them that evil character is as contagious as a deadly, communicable disease.

The “crowd” can and will alter the moral perception and moral compass of a naive soul not grounded in Scriptures. After a certain amount of exposure and experience with the crowd, it is suddenly okay to text pictures of oneself in various stages of nudity, to discuss lewd, lascivious subjects with a bawdy relish, to aspire to a life of abandon, free of moral restraints, etc. After moral perceptions are altered, it is understandable why loving parents and concerned Pastors are now viewed by the youngster as unreasonable, obstructionist, out of touch and hopelessly old-fashioned. This principle explains why a youngster heretofore happy and content with his family, will become unruly, uncooperative and discontented after involvement with the crowd. This is why a personality that falls out of favor with “the herd” will become an object of scorn and even a “target” to be vilified even though that personality was viewed with favor or at least neutrality, before the whim of the crowd turned against him.

Once Sent, Forever Available

The so-called anonymity the web provides is illusory. Whatever is placed on a blog, chat room, website, etc., is permanently available for an interested person to see. These items can be archived, and can come back to haunt a person many years later. Unguarded, provocative remarks, photographs, videos, etc., have been searched out by Human Resource personnel years after they were put in cyberspace, and they became the unmentioned reason why a person failed to get a job or promotion, or why some lost their positions.

No Thought For Consequences

Young people in particular are very impressionable, vulnerable and naive. Their underdeveloped minds and emotions tempt them to be involved in the “excitement” of social networking. In the privacy of their bedroom, they give little or no thought to the consequences of sharing personal information about themselves, their families and their friends, which then can be pieced together by sexual predators, criminals and identity thieves. Some information shared is scandalous, such as “sexting,” whereby a cell phone or webcam is used to send images of pubescent youngsters in various stages of nudity. Other images, while not revealing body parts, are highly provocative or sensual, all of which will be available for all to see, now, and in years to come.

Dangerous Addiction?

Social networking provides a sense of fulfilment for many that so-called “normal life” does not supply. Interestingly, this is one marker for addiction. This subtle addiction draws many away from responsibility for prolonged periods of time. Far from redeeming the time (Ephesians 5:16), this individual has invested many hours in voyeuristic, spiritually-damaging chats, blogs, sensuality and carnal or foolish conversations that certainly do not conform them to the image of Christ (Romans 8:29), but rather desensitizes their spirit and conscience. Many are driven to spend countless hours on the web, and if for some reason they would not have access to their favorite sites, would experience a sense of emotional loss and cravings similar in intensity to a person’s physical cravings for tobacco if he was to quit the habit.

This addictive enslavement violates the principles of 1 Corinthians 6:12, “I will not be brought under the power of any.” The obsessive compulsion to be actively involved in social networking ceases to be expedient, and becomes a dominating sinful habit pattern.

Spiritual Damage

In today’s moral environment, the lowest moral denominator among young people is scandalous and outrageous. It ought not to be surprising then, that their conversation and interests are often spiritually detrimental.

God wants us to be wise concerning that which is good and simple (inexperienced) concerning that which is evil (Romans 16:9). Tragically, after hours, days, weeks and months of licentious, risqué' chats, blogs and websites, a young person could become "street wise," hardened against the still small voice of the Holy Spirit, and jaded and cynical about life itself! His priorities, interests and moral values will certainly not be those of his Pastor and Sunday School teacher. Could this explain why many teens are detached, palpably bored and disdainful of church services and family altar?

Have I Counted the Cost?

Parents need to seriously question the need for their children to have unsupervised access to cell phones and computers. The texting, wrong pictures and doubtful conversations are elements of "liberty" for which most youngsters are not prepared. Some are texting in school and in church services rather than studying or allowing the Lord to speak to them. Privacy and liberty given by a cell phone, computer and car, are for spiritually mature, responsible adults, not immature, hedonistic and irresponsible children. It is already a daunting challenge to reach a child's heart for Christ, restrain them and bring them up in the nurture and admonition of the Lord. Why would I as a parent want to greatly complicate these challenges by allowing unsupervised, and uncontrolled access to cell phones and computers? To do so in this Satanically-dominated world would be a little like teaching my child to swim while he was wearing concrete shoes!

Possible Guidelines

May I suggest some possible ways in which a parent could have some control and supervision in these areas:

- 1) A computer should never be in a child's bedroom, but rather in the most public place of the house, such as kitchen or other area most frequented by family members. The computer/laptop should never be behind closed doors, and should be so positioned that passers by will readily see what is being viewed on the monitor.
- 2) No computer for children, or any family member, should be allowed that does not have software that can regularly be examined by parent, guardian, or spouse that reveals everything that has been viewed on that computer. Accountability is crucial.
- 3) Texting has become a mania for many youth. This obsession, for the same moral dangers of the computer, should be inaccessible, or strictly monitored.
- 4) Software is available to prevent most pornography and other objectionable sites from being accessed. Every computer in a home should be so equipped. These are not "fool proof," that is why vigilance and close supervision of computers is still needed.

Blessings vs Curses

I communicate with my daughter on the mission field via our computer. This is superior to “snail mail,” which took weeks, and often never arrived. Access to local and world news from a variety of sources that is almost instantaneous is a marvelous and enjoyable blessing. The ability to find an obscure or popular product “online” at a fair price saves much time and effort. I can research “the teleological suspension of the ethical,” sublapsarianism or the varroa destructor mite online without a time-consuming trip to a library. I can be kept informed about groups, missionaries, ministries and Christian organizations via their newsletters. These are up to date and without cost of postage. Some of them are thousands of miles away in third-world countries, and yet I know to pray for a crisis that took place 24 hours ago. Computers provide instant accessibility to information, products and services in an unparalleled way heretofore unavailable to us. We can communicate with friends, strangers, associates and family members instantly, and over thousands of miles with a click of our mouse. Computers are a wonder of our modern age.

Oceans, lakes, rivers and ponds provide transportation, commerce, scenic beauty, food and recreation. However, they can also provide tsunamis, floods, sink ships and drown souls.

Guns provide food for the table, hunting, sports, and arm our military. We also use guns for recreational shooting and protection of lives and property. However, no thinking, responsible parent would allow unsupervised, uncontrolled access to his guns for his children.

Similarly, we must recognize that though computer technology is a tremendous help to us, it can be an unmitigated disaster for our children, and even for us as adults. Restraints, controls, supervision and accountability are not just a good idea for our computers and cell phones, they are a necessity. If a righteous man is to regard the life of his beast (Proverbs 12:10), how much more should we zealously look out for ourselves, our spouse and our children?

CONTENDING FOR THE FAITH

In the 1970's at a Pastors' Conference, I saw a publication on the host churches literature table entitled, The Voice in the Wilderness. Mark 1:3 was the key verse on the front cover, The voice of one crying in the wilderness, Prepare ye the way of the Lord, make His paths straight. Then these two statements followed: Contending for Fundamental Christianity and Contending for American Freedom. From that day to this, Ronnie Williamson was a subscriber. Few weeks would go by that I did not use material from The Voice in the Wilderness publication in a Sunday school class, sermon or church bulletin. It would be years later when I would personally meet Dr. J. Royce Thomason, editor, yet, The Voice in the Wilderness would be a long time friend and help to my ministry. Thank God today; this unique ministry is "Still Contending"! Standing on the Word of God as our sole authority for our faith and practice. "...ye should earnestly contend for the faith which was once delivered unto the saints" Jude 3.

For all of you who have read and supported The Voice in the Wilderness ministry for many years, as well as new readers and friends of The Voice in the Wilderness publication—with conviction, compassion, and commitment, we intend to continue to "earnestly contend for the faith." While many churches and pastors I know have compromised on standards, music, associations, and modernistic trends, this ministry remains a committed and compassionate voice crying out to God's people for conviction firmly rooted in THE BOOK, THE BLOOD, and THE BLESSED HOPE of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ.

Contending For the Faith Is:

1. Standing on the Word of God as our sole authority for our faith and practice.
2. Submitting to the Holy Spirit of God for leadership and to guide us in all truth.

3. Surrender to holy living as a people who believe, love, and fear God our Heavenly Father.
4. Sweet with our words of truth in love to those in danger or gone astray.
5. Steadfast, unmovable, always abounding in the work of the Lord even when misunderstood, criticized, and lied about by opposition.
6. Strengthening those preachers, churches, and brethren who faithfully hold forth the Word of Life!
7. Share the gospel of Christ and the goodness of God toward those within and without the household of faith.

There are many differences in the churches of America, Mexico, Venezuela, India and the Philippines. However, there are fundamentals that cannot be compromised. Today, it is our responsibility as believers to “earnestly contend for the faith which was once delivered unto” us. God’s Word, Will, and Work have not changed! We must remain pure and unspotted from

...there are fundamentals that cannot be compromised.

“If you sincerely drink poison it will kill you: ...If you sincerely believe a lie, you will suffer the consequences. You must not only be sincere, but you must be right.” C.H.S.

this present age—thus the need to, the imperative to “earnestly contend for the faith.”

The world’s music, dress, and philosophy have no place in HIS church. Maybe the world’s user-friendly, purpose driven methods have a place in some churches, but not HIS CHURCH. HIS CHURCH is GLORY LED not Purpose Driven. HIS CHURCH is to be a “glorious church,” having not spot, or wrinkle – Ephesians 5:27; living unto praise and honour and glory at the appearing of Jesus Christ – 1 Peter 1:7; full of glory – 1 Peter 1:8. In “earnestly contending for the faith,” the question must always be asked, Does this glorify the Lord? Does the style, beat, and volume of music glorify the Lord or please and insight the flesh? Does the body-piercing, tattoo, tight-revealing sensual dress glorify the Lord or appeal to the flesh? Does the “purpose drive” me, or is my motivation to bring honour and glory to the Lord Jesus Christ?

It was meant to be a critical, demeaning letter, but I took it as a compliment. The writer professed to be a Christian, yet with bitterness made remarks about my (Ronnie Williamson’s) version of the Bible; and that I must believe in pastoral authority. Well, by those remarks, I assume this individual must have a problem with the KJB because I do believe and defend the KJB as the preserved Word of God for English speaking people today. I do not endorse the New King James, NIV, NAS, ESV, or the many other translations. These modern versions are based on revised, rediscovered, and rejected texts compiled by a list of “scholars/higher critics” who were German rationalists, evolutionists who promoted spiritism and racism denying biblical inerrancy. I will stand with the Textus Receptus and the Masoretic Text upon which the KJB is based. And yes, I do believe in pastoral authority not pastoral dictatorship or committee-run. The local New Testament church is to be autonomous. The pastor is the leader under the Lord Jesus Christ. The Bible is the sole authority for our faith and practice. There are those who desire to dictate, deter, divide, denominationalize, even destroy God’s work, but we are committed to “earnestly contend for the faith!”

May God help us. Will you pray that this ministry, The Voice in the Wilderness, will continue to go forward and be faithful to the Word of God?. Amen! –RLW

In 2009, The Voice in the Wilderness experienced a 36% decrease in support. It is extremely difficult to underwrite projected missionary needs and continue necessary operational tasks with this serious shortfall.

A great without has been written on heathenism. Men and women toiling without a Bible, without a Sunday to worship, without prayer, without songs or praise. They have rulers without justice and without righteousness; homes without peace; marriage without sanctity; young men and girls without ideals and enthusiasm; little children without purity, without innocence; mothers without wisdom or self-control; poverty without relief or sympathy; sickness without skillful help or tender care; sorrow and crime without a remedy; and, worst of all death without hope.

report that 'noted that crop farming not only suffers from global warming, but also contributes 14 percent of the world's greenhouse gas emissions.' You may want to read that statement again. It is my understanding the vegetation takes in greenhouse gas (carbon dioxide) and gives off oxygen. Carbon dioxide is the gas of life. Our problem is not greenhouse gas; it is White House gas.

"The Obama administration is making provisions to comply with all the U.N. resolutions including, but not limited to, abortion, disarmament, and protection of homosexuals. However, there is one issue that is critical to the American people, gun control. This administration has now listed guns as a public-health threat. I admit that it is unhealthy to get shot, but that should not come under the order of public health,

"Second Amendment advocates are expressing alarm that the most significant attack on gun rights across the United States in years soon could come in the form of a workplace 'safety' regulation under President Obama's nominee to run the federal Occupational Safety and Health Administration. Obama has nominated David Michaels, a George Washington University professor and the chief of the Project on Scientific Knowledge and Public Policy, which reportedly partially is funded by George Soros (www.wnd.com). He is reportedly one of the new 'czars' being installed in Washington as part of Obama's shadow government.

"The latest created crisis is the supposed 'pandemic' H1N1, or the much publicized swine flu. In Africa, with a total population of over 800 million, 41 have died of swine flu. That doesn't constitute a pandemic in anyone's language. However, there are plans by our government to force everyone to take the vaccine, a vaccine that has not been adequately tested. Some deaths in the country have already been attributed to the vaccine."

[Watch for "the 2012 Earth Summit dubbed Rio+20. That is supposed to drive possibly the last nail into our coffin. But we as Christians have read the last chapter in the Book."

Some in the church say, "You will not preach politics in my pulpit." What they mean is I send my children to public school. I'm a party-line voter and there are parts of the Bible that offend me, disturb my prom going, movie attending, beach wear life style and we will not tolerate Holy Spirit conviction. Pastor, will you stand and declare "thus saith the Lord?"]

For All Boys & Girls

Engaging children in being a steadfast worker for Christ, Encouraging them to be a boy or girl pleasing to the Lord, and Equipping them to be a missionary every day . . . through lessons from the Apostle Paul's missionary helpers, Aquila & Priscilla.

Lessons from Aquila and Priscilla

We have just finished up 2009 and are starting 2010. There is something about starting a new year that is refreshing. Some things that we have done in the past can be forgotten and we can look toward the future. The Apostle Paul also had the same idea when he wrote in Philippians 3:13 “. . . but this one thing I do, forgetting those things which are behind, and reaching forth unto those things which are before.” So what should you be reaching forth toward this next year? Here is a small list.

1. To obey your parents in all things. (Colossians 3:20) To obey is to do whatever they ask immediately, completely and sweetly.
2. To do your best in school. (Ecclesiastes 9:10) If this means that an A is your best, you should be getting A's. If it is a C, you should be getting C's. Do your best!
3. To work for God this year. (1 Corinthians 15:58) You can work for God by telling your unsaved friends about Him, or handing out a tract to somebody. Determine to do this at least once a month this year.

Finally, remember that all you are doing is for Jesus. Paul wrote it this way in Colossians 3:17, “And whatsoever ye do in word or deed, do all in the name of the Lord Jesus, giving thanks to God and the Father by him.” God will bless you if you do everything for Him.

Before everyone gets there, make two lines about 20 feet apart. Divide up into teams of three. Everyone should make a triangle with their backs to each other and elbows locked. Mom yells, "One for all and all for one!" The teams race from the first line to the second without their arms becoming unlinked. If they do become unlinked the team must start over at the line. First team to the second line and back to the first wins.
